

Stewardship advocate

Ministry role description

Role overview

Stewardship advocates strengthen the stewardship ministry of your church by helping to integrate faith and stewardship principles with the needs of your congregation and its members.

Ministry activities

1. Assist the congregation in using Everence stewardship educational resources and events.
2. Stay informed through advocate training activities.
3. Help others connect to Everence services.
4. Share information about Everence with the congregation.
5. Report activity by completing quarterly reports.

For additional information about ministry activities of an advocate, contact your Everence local office.

Qualifications of an advocate

1. Desire to help meet stewardship needs in the congregation.

2. Work well with church leadership and the church's caring network.
3. Support the Everence stewardship mission to help members integrate their faith with financial decisions.
4. Be willing to volunteer one or two hours per month.
5. Be willing to serve two or three years.

Selection/appointment process*

1. Advocates are selected by church leaders or a congregational process.
2. Church leaders may consult with their Everence stewardship consultant about the advocate role or appointment process.

Advocate support

Your Everence stewardship consultant provides orientation and ongoing support to your advocate in this ministry role.

Active insurance agents, financial advisors/planners, Everence representatives, and their spouses are ineligible to serve as Everence advocates.*
